Purpose & Summary

In order to generate sufficient resources and then to direct those resources in the most efficient and effective manner to address the most urgent needs of individuals and families in a community, it is vital to have access to an up to date and comprehensive community needs assessment. To that end, our United Way of Greater Plymouth County attempts ideally to conduct a comprehensive community needs assessment on a regular basis. This process is time consuming, labor intensive and consequently, very costly. In addition, due to continued governmental funding and requisite monitoring of how its resources are being expended, many health and human service organizations and coalitions applying for and receiving federal, state and local governmental funds are being required to conduct needs assessments across a wide array of need areas.

Rather than incur unreasonable expense and to reduce unnecessary duplicative efforts by engaging in a formal community needs assessment process, our United Way of Greater Plymouth County has surveyed the broad landscape of our greater Plymouth County geography and collected eight needs assessments conducted within the past five years regarding the health and human service needs of our neighbors. We have summarized and placed the findings of these reports within our general framework of “Service Needs” focusing on the areas of health, education and financial stability and the more global “Systemic Needs” in order to serve as guides in making an application for United Way funds. Links to the actual source documents are included and all are urged to review these reports.

In addition, applicants for United Way funding are welcome to continue to use our United Way’s most recent community needs assessment conducted in cooperation with the staff and students of Bridgewater State University four years ago. The findings for this needs assessment are included in the need areas that follow in this summary.
